

SCHOOL OPENING

Here it is about the middle of September again and your boy must have good school clothes.

The growing, romping school boy is always a very expensive proposition, at best. Parents who have raised a few know all about it.

Thousands of boys are now climbing out of vacation suits into school suits.

The boys that get into our school suits will do well—they do the best!

School suits have been our study, for a long time, and we have something exceptional to offer our patrons.

We have the satisfying kind, with all the style features to please the boy, and back of them solid, substantial wear that parents insist upon.

Just test the merit of our boys' school suits. It will pay you well to do so!

EXPERT PRAISES LAND OF INDIAN

NO BETTER FOUND THAN THAT OF UTAH BASIN.

Albert H. Kneale, Teller of the Opportunities Existing On the Former Utah Reservation For the Home-seeker and Investor—Everything Grown Under the Sun Is Produced.

That better lands with unquestioned water rights and complete irrigation system can be purchased for less money from the Indians on the Utah reservation than anywhere else on earth was the declaration of Albert H. Kneale, superintendent of the Utah Indian reservation, who was at Salt Lake City last week in the interests of Indian lands. Kneale, an expert agriculturalist, has been in charge of the Utah reservation since January 1, 1915, and in that time has devoted practically his entire time to studying methods of bringing the surplus Indian lands under cultivation.

"If every one of the eleven hundred Indians of the reservation cultivated all the land it was possible for each to work, there would still be sixty-five thousand acres of the finest land in the country under a perfect irrigation system still uncultivated," said Mr. Kneale. "And if there is any other place on earth where a man can purchase a good land, with a primary water right and unquestioned title for fifteen dollars an acre—the price asked by the government for these lands—I'd like to know where it is. It can't be found. Why, it cost the government twelve dollars an acre to put the water on the land."

Railroad Means Higher Prices. "And let me tell you something more, the minute a railroad starts a line into the district the land is going to be worth twenty-five dollars an acre. The purchaser gets clear title to the land and has four years in which to pay for it. But my greatest interest is not in selling the land, but in bringing it under cultivation. Through leases and sales thirty thousand acres have been taken up this year, but only about five thousand acres have been purchased."

Some people have been afraid of the land on account of the altitude, but their fears are without grounds. We have a record for twenty-five years of a hundred and twenty-five frostless days a year and there are many men on the reservation lands growing corn at a profit, fifty bushels or more to an acre. Wheat after the first year will produce forty bushels to the acre and oats, ninety bushels. It is a great potato country and the average yield for potato field is four hundred bushels to the acre.

As for sugar beets, the land cannot be overgrown. We grow the finest in the state, but only enough for cattle feed as there is no way to get them to a factory. But there are a million acres of land in the basin on which sugar beets can be raised and when the railroad comes, and I have good reason to believe it will come within two or three years, the farmers will not be growing sugar beets for stock feed."

Kneale said that in addition to the lands subject to cultivation, the Indians own four hundred thousand acres of fine grazing lands in the district which could be had at reasonable prices.

PAY NO MONEY TO THE NEWS-ADVOCATE

The Sun once more advises subscribers to the now defunct Eastern Utah Advocate to pay no money on subscription account prior to July 14, 1915, to the News-Advocate or W. C. Beaser. The chattel mortgage under which the Eastern Utah Advocate plant and fixtures was foreclosed included:

- "Mailing list and subscription books of the Eastern Utah Advocate."
- The alleged sale of the subscription and mailing lists of the defunct Eastern Utah Advocate is simply an attempt upon the part of W. C. Beaser and the gang associated with him to get something for nothing.

SHIPPERS WIN IN RECENT DECISION

FEDERAL RULING OVERTURNS RAILROAD SCHEDULE.

Stockmen Who Lose By Transportation Company's Fault Are Now Enabled to Recover Nearer Actual Values—Great Improvement Lately Over Conditions That Prevailed.

The recent fixing of rates to control claims of live stock owners against railroads in cases of loss of animals consigned for shipment is regarded by S. W. McClure, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' association, as a distinctive improvement over old conditions. The federal schedule, in the opinion of McClure, will furnish a means of peace long needed in the eternal controversies between stock shippers and the railroads. Concerning the new order he says:

"The interstate commerce commission has just rendered a decision of great importance to all live stock producers in the United States. When live stock is shipped by railroad to market or anywhere else the carrier is liable for the loss of such stock if such loss is occasioned through the negligence or carelessness of such railroad."

Roads Did Fit Maximum.

"For many years the railroads have fixed an arbitrary figure of value as the maximum amount that they would pay to the shipper in the event of loss or damage through their negligence. In case of sheep, the shipper could not recover more than three dollars per head, or thirty dollars per head for a cow, or fifty dollars per head for a steer. These values were all right, and about representative of the value of live stock fifteen years ago, but they have not represented a fair basis for settlement in the last fifteen years, because live stock has advanced materially in price. In order to be able to recover the actual value of the live stock the shipper placed a value on his stock higher than the arbitrary figures fixed by the railroad. Then the shipper was forced to pay an increase in the rate ranging from 10 to 25 per cent, which, of course, was prohibitory."

Victory For the Shippers.

"The interstate commerce commission has had this matter under consideration for some time, and I have received that body's opinion in the case. The decision is a complete victory for the live stock shippers, as it holds that the railroads were not justified in placing such low rates of value upon the animals shipped, and neither were they justified in charging such an increased rate when the shipper placed a value on live stock higher than that proposed by the railroads. In the decision of the commission it is held that the railroads should transport live stock without any advance in rates and fix a value for sheep of five dollars per head, against three dollars provided for in the railroad contracts, place a value of fifty dollars on each cow as against thirty dollars, and place a value of seventy-five dollars on each steer, as against fifty dollars originally provided for by the railroads."

"Now in the event that the shipper desires to ship his stock on a higher basis of valuation than that here proposed by the commission, the railroads will be allowed to advance their rates 2 per cent for each 50 per cent advance in the declared value of the shipment. The effect of this decision is that in the future where shippers have live stock killed or damaged through the negligence of the railroad they will be able to recover from the railroad a fair market value for the stock instead of having to settle upon a basis of about 60 per cent, as they have been doing in the past."

DOING GEOLOGICAL WORK

Mineral Deposits In Utah Being Out-lined For Survey.

Topographical maps, preparatory to the geological survey of mineral deposits in sections of Utah, are being made by engineers of the United States geological survey department at Salt Lake City. The work of making the surveys will not be started until next year.

H. B. Butler is in the Ogish Mountain range doing field work for topographical maps of mineral deposits, while A. T. Fowler and C. E. Urquhart are doing the topography and control work in the fields at Wellington, Sunnyside and Mercer sections.

Billionaires and Constipation.

It is certainly surprising that any woman will endure the miserable feelings caused by biliousness and constipation, when relief is so easily had and at so little expense. Mrs. Charles Peck, Gates, N. Y., writes: "About a year ago I used two bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets and they cured me of biliousness and constipation." Obtainable everywhere.—Advt.

PLAN IS ADVANCED TO HELP FARMER

STATE CONTROL OF IRRIGATION IS ADVOCATED.

Financial Assistance From the State Would Save the Day For Many. Thinks H. T. Haines, Commissioner of Labor, Immigration and Statistics—Irrigation Problem Important.

State control and supervision of all irrigation projects for the reclaiming of agricultural land, with financial aid from the state for homesteaders and farmers without ready money, in the opinion of H. T. Haines, commissioner of immigration, labor and statistics, is the best method with which to cope with the situation presented in Utah by landseekers coming into the state with little or no capital. Haines says that his office is flooded with inquiries concerning vacant farm lands in Utah. Inquiries are coming from all sections of the country and the dry farming land in Southeastern Utah, near the Colorado border, is being taken up rapidly.

"The trouble with the immigrants to these farm lands, however, is that they have practically no money with which to buy equipment," says Haines. "High rates of interest are asked on all loans made to these farmers and a fee often is exacted by the person securing the loan for them. Most of the dry farmers taking up land in the state lose their farms through a foreclosure just at the time when the farm begins to pay."

"If the state could loan these farmers money at a fair rate of interest and at the same time control all irrigation projects, conditions throughout the new farming district now opening up would be much more satisfactory. Many reclamation companies have filed on water rights and, without doing any work, have transferred them to other companies at a high figure. I have known some water rights to have been sold until they have reached a figure as high as two hundred thousand dollars without ever having been used to reclaim land."

"The farmer taking up the dry land must pay for this, while if the state controlled these projects the water would be put on arid land, and at a considerably less figure to the farmer than is done under the present private ownership of reclamation projects."

The Most Important Days of the Year Are Probably the Few Brief Days Prior to

Fall Opening of School

But most of the fretting and care and worry incident to getting the children ready for school may be entirely eliminated by following the example of those who supply every possible need over the counters of our store.

Every item of under-apparel and outer-apparel, of headwear, of foot wear, as well as every item of miscellaneous stationery, will require less of your money than ordinarily. If the price is the same as last season, the quality is even better—and, if the quality is the same as last season, the price is less.
